And silence can be maddening for those of us with tinnitus. Now, with coronavirus outbreaks forcing many of us to work from home, the sound of children, pets, and significant others risks interrupting your concentration or an important conference call. If you ever need to block the world for a little peace of mind that having a white noise machine handy can make your day go much more smoothly. There are countless sound therapy devices on the market and they vary significantly in both the feature set and the overall quality. To help narrow your search, we have put together a list of excellent white noise machines. Dreamegg White Noise and Sound Machine Dreamegg wraps up a lot in its small white noise and sound machine. It has 24 built-in white noise, fan and natural sounds. You can leave it on all night or set a 30-, 60- or 90-minute hour with a memory feature that allows you to automatically use your last sound every time. There is also a night light feature for those who use this in a kindergarten. Sound+Sleep High Fidelity Sleep Sound Machine With white noise ready is useful, but the Sound+Sleep audio machine from Adaptive Sound Technologies offers so much more than that. It offers 30 different sound environments, and none of them are burdened by an annoying loop. Waterfalls, meadows, city noise, white noise and more are jammed into this sleek device that will automatically raise and lower the volume based on your environment. Yogasleep Dohm Classic White many devices rely on an audio file to deliver their white noise, dohm actually uses a physical fan to create noise at two different speeds. Better yet, the adjustable case can be twisted to adjust the tone. Factor in more than 7,000 reviews, and this 4.5-star device is a no-brainer for those who need help sleeping. Yogasleep Rohm Portable White Noise Machine While many white noise devices are designed to be put in and left alone on a nightstand, some of us need to be able to bring our sound therapy machine with us wherever we go. Rohm portable white noise machine has a rechargeable battery, three different audio options, and a lanyard for properly hanging. And with over 4,000 reviews, the 4-star average is encouraging for the heavy travelers among us. homeLabs Noise Machine At first glance, homeLab's white noise machine seems a little simple. It only has eight sounds to choose from. But it also has memory features that store your last noise for later use and have a 15-, 30- and hours if you prefer not to all night. The device can be connected with an AC adapter or rely on the built-in lithium battery when you're on the go. Reacher R2 White Noise Machine and Night Light R2 from Reacher is a two-in-one noise machine and night light with a swarm of adjustable setting combinations. The device offers 31 different sounds, including a variety of white, forehead and pink sounds, as well as fan and nature sounds. As a night light, you have eight colors that can be dimmed as needed. Switch states between options for solid, changing, and breathing colors. A timer can be set to intervals of one, two, and three hours. Lectrofan Noise Machine If a sleek minimalist design is an important point for you, Lectrofan from Adaptive Sound Technologies is among the most aesthetically pleasing options. It can be powered from a power outlet or a USB cable, offers 10 different noise options, and has a built-in timer. And if you prefer brown or pink noise to standard white noise, this is a solid choice. Douni Sound Machine Douni's sound machine features 24 noise, fan and natural sounds with a 30-, 60- and 90-minute sleep-timer. The device remembers audio, volume, and hours from previous uses. It also includes a headphone jack for increased privacy and a USB cable that allows power banks and computers to connect. Avantek White Noise Sound Machine Avantek's sound machine has 30 volume states, six versions of white noise, six fan variations, and eight assorted ambient sounds, this little box offers plenty of black without looping. The Vanzon White Noise Machine Noise Machine from Vanzon offers an impressive collection of 36 fans, white noise and natural sounds. The device has a built-in 30-, 60- and 90-minute hours with a memory that saves volume, audio, and hours from previous use. Interestingly, it also includes a headphone jack to avoid bothering others while you sleep or work. Because of how stressful everything feels right now, you may have difficulty sleeping. If you've tried everything from meditation to journaling to weighted blankets, but you still don't get a good night's sleep, an audio machine can help. It will drown out any noise, and can be soothing enough to help you fall asleep. To help you, we have compiled the best audio machines and whitening machines, as praised by the most enthusiastic reviewers on Amazon, for you and your children. Related Articles: Weighted Blankets for Poison | Tech Gadgets for Sleep With nearly 6,000 five-star reviews, this audio machine is easy to use and as such is often placed in children's rooms. A mother bought this for her son, who couldn't sleep with her older brother's snoring, and found that volume control is very easy to work and can slowly adapt to button at clear high. Easy and clear one-touch button for choosing sounds, too. As it can be used with batteries as well as a plug, it does not need to be near an electrical outlet. And according to many it holds up well. We have been using this subject for five years now and it is brilliant, one writes. The machine comes with six different soothing sounds, like ocean waves, thunder, and what's called summer night for cricket sounds, and reviewers appreciate the variety. They say, whatever sound you choose, they are all deeply relaxing: I would wake up so nice and refreshed to rain noise or white noise or thunder, and that would be great, but I can't leave my bed. Although the morning is tough, she thinks it's so worth it because it has made her a sleeping beauty. Some people had difficulty measuring how big the machine is and they say it was a little disappointed with the size and build because it is much smaller than he expected. But it still works so well, he says: This thing has literally changed my life. Marpac Dohm Classic White-Noise Sound Machine A lot of these sound machines are easy to use to an extent, but Strategist editor Alexis Swerdloff says this one can be operated while you're basically still asleep. Simply turn the volume switch to high or low, and then turn the cap to select your sound. And nearly 200 reviewers at Amazon call it easy to use as well. Buy it yourself. Buy it for your sister. Buy it for a baby. Buy it for a guest room, writes a reviewer. It's so versatile that it even landed on our list of the most giftable things we've ever written about. There are no hours, so you have to manually turn it on and off every night and morning, but many reviewers aren't bothered by it. I wanted the machine to be in constant condition all night and all the nap, says one. He says it's basically the white noise of a fan without the temperature changing. There's none of the fancy lullaby and bubbly creek and waves crashing or anything more than just noise like a fan, he says. Another even says that this is all you could want in a noise machine: small, portable, adjustable, powerful. She explains that it won't drown out all the noise, so if your upstairs neighbors are blasting rock music and riding pogo sticks, you're still going to hear it, but it definitely helps and it's so simple to spend on a good price range, it's worth the investment. Reviewers raved about the noise-blocking abilities of LectroFan, with one reviewer writing that the noise from their neighbors was so loud at night. I almost considered moving out or at least switching to an upstairs unit... That is, until I happened on this amazing little device. They continue, this thing was absolutely perfect for me as it only had white noise and fan sounds (and a number of 'em!) that can be loud enough to mask everything. I mean everything. I can now peacefully snooze through not only my neighbors' trampled kitchen antics, but also 8 A.M. garbage truck arrives bright and early every Wednesday. Reviewers praised the fact that it has a wealth of choices regarding the volume and intensity of sound, and a I call Lectrofan my my Cone of silence.' Another reviewer said this machine stopped me from causing bodily harm to my neighbor who likes to shovel gravel in the morning. They continue, the machine somehow completely covers the noise from the shovel, the toilet flushing next to my room, dogs barking, etc. It's unbelievable. Wave Premium Sleep Therapy Sound Machine Much to my husband's dismay, I've had to run a box fan 365 nights a year because I have hot feet. This winter I found that I didn't need the fan blowing on me, but I needed the sound of the fan to fall asleep, one reviewer says, adding: This small device has a fan sound that allows me to fall asleep without any problems with no cold air blowing around the room at night. And many other reviewers face the same dilemma gravitate toward this sound machine, including this reviewer who writes: I got this because I'm having trouble sleeping without a fan on, and then it would come to the cold. This does the trick and I totally recommend. You can set it on time or just let it run all night. Like most others who buy sound machines, I'm a light, fan sleeper and I'm surrounded by neighborhood kids, and crowing cocks, writes a reviewer who calls this LectroFan white-noise machine beyond awesome. I have absolutely no idea why Marpac has twice as many reviews and followers on Amazon as this machine because LectroFan is obviously the superior machine. It is much higher and much more extensive in range of abilities. Many reviewers appreciate that it is also a non-looping machine. My favorite feature is no-looping, says one and adds: If you've had to listen to a sound machine with a looped noise for longer, you'll start hearing what sounds like alien chanting, or repeated phrases that sound pretty creepy coming through a baby monitor. Another reviewer admits, Loved it so much I bought a second for myself and my husband. It's small, easy to use and efficient – we sleep really well and I'm used to waking up to every noise! This portable sound machine is a top pick for those who need a white-noise machine when traveling, like one that writes, size is great, especially if you want to take it on your travels. Amazing features and ability to set a timer. Bought on the recommendation of friend who travels internationally often and spends on tours and at home. Another reviewer and her husband like this sound machine so much that they brought it to the great outdoors: My husband and I have been camping with this machine on many occasions for several days at a time. The description says it keeps a fee for up to 12 hours, but we've been using it for at least two nights at a time (16+ hours) without having to recharge it. It's also portable and light weight, so it's really easy to take with you anywhere. Critics praised this sound machine for its library of available sounds and lack of a loop. I suffer from tinnitus and it's hard to get to cover up the constant noise, writes a reviewer. This machine does better than I ever thought possible. Also very important, the sounds are not looping. It is surprisingly easy to record the loop on most audio machines. No loop here, so you won't go bonkers waiting for the next repeat to happen in your head. Another, who described the machine as essential to helping their autistic child sleep, writes: There is a wonderful selection of sounds to choose from so you will find the one you like the best. I was nervous about spending [money] on this, but it was so worth getting a good night's sleep. It is also very calming for children or adults who have meltdowns. In short, one reviewer writes: These are rolls of white noise machines. Buy it here. Although many audio machines have a bad reputation for being clunky and uninteresting, customers were pleased with the compact size and comfortable design of this Adaptive Sound Technologies option. It's actually smaller than the travel-size pick and nearly 150 five-star reviewers call it compact, including one that appreciates that very little space is needed for it. Some customers thought the smaller size would make it less efficient, but she reports: It blocks completely without noise, so you can get the sleep you need not yet so loud that you can't hear the necessary things, especially with the volume. Another reviewer agrees that yes, it can get very high for its small size, but it's easy to control and it even has a timer to turn off the machine for 60 minutes when you hopefully sleep. Over 300 five-star reviewers even believe that the size and uncomplicated design make it perfect for travel. They say that because it is compact, you can take it with you anywhere. And she takes it everywhere. You can honestly just throw it in your wallet and use it while you're in the car. It is connected via USB and power outlet so you can plug the USB into your car, or she suggests a computer if you tend to travel with one. I was going crazy with my tall neighbors. The stomping, the door slamming, etc. was waking me up early in the A.M. hours. I needed a sound machine to block their sounds. I finally found it, raves a reviewer of this high-fidelity sound machine from Sound + Sleep. They add: This machine has an 'adaptive' audio function that increases the volume of its noise when it hears other noises. So when my jerk neighbors slam doors, it adjusts itself. This noise cancelling feature is a selling point for many other reviewers, too, like someone who lives on a very busy street and writes: The machine actually produces louder sounds when it detects an increased noise volume in my bedroom. So if it hears a truck rumbling past, it will increase the volume to cancel out the loud noise from the truck. So once the truck has passed, it will lower the volume down again. But even those who have never turned on adaptive mode like this sound different sounds: I can adjust the volume to cancel any in the neighborhood, including barking dogs and garbage trucks. It has more settings than I will ever use, but I like having the choice. Some of the settings I find better for meditation than sleep, like 'meadow', and yes, there is even a marked meditation with a sitar. To sleep I like the 'brown noise', 'small fan' and 'rain'. They also add, it's also nice that I can plug my phone into it via the USB port for night recharging. Critics loved the versatility of this sound machine, which can run on batteries or put in a wall. We like to wear it all night for our family, which would kill batteries on the travel version, wrote one reviewer who had previously had a battery-only version. Critics were also pleased with the variety of sounds to choose from: Had heartbeat sound both our children loved when they were newborns, one reviewer wrote. Another preferred the machine's lullaby music, but noted that the volume gets loud enough to drown out the loud stomping sounds of our upstairs neighbors and allow their child to sleep. This cute monkey-shaped pacifier has a hook so it can be hung from a stroller or crib, and its cheeks glow for a subtle night light effect. By far the coolest part of this is the downloadable app that allows you to select and program what you want from the preloaded songs, sounds and stories, and put them in the order you want. I like that you can choose as little or as much of the preloaded items as you want, writes a reviewer. The app also lets you record your own stories or messages. One reviewer writes: I can't wait for grandparents to come so they can record their own stories for her! I may have to buy another one for our 3 year old son because he is being completely attached to his big sister's! Another reviewer used it to keep their older child in bed: 'I didn't think 'Don't get into mum and dad's bed at night. Stay in your own room, PLEASE!' Are you an anal retentive mother like me? So boy, I have the product for you, starting a reviewer when writing this Hatch Baby Nightlight/sound machine. I spent a lot of time researching sound machines and bought it initially for our newborn. It worked well for overnight feedings as you can adjust the light brightness from your phone. Has a big blowout that took place at 2 A.M.? Fear not. This light will get you through that changing without having to wake the child with bright skylights. Plus, this sound machine also acts as an okay-to-wake light, a feature praised by dozens of reviewers, including one who writes: I was a little hesitant to buy a $60 night light and sound machine – but this product really turned out to be worth every penny. Our 2 year old woke up at 4:45 every morning and after telling him that it was not time to get up... Now I can put an okay-to-wake light and it comes on every morning to he knows he can get up. Plus, the sound machine itself helps lots of children fall and stay, stay. One parent writes: I don't know what the guide did this thing, but I went from swaddling a six-month-old baby to being able to put her down in a sleeping bag and she'll sleep for an hour/hour and a half, no problem. She also went from waking every two hours to sleeping at least 4 to 5 without a night feed. Their review concludes: It has saved my sanity and allowed me to finally get some sleep. 100 percent recommend. In fact, great deals, smart shopping advice, and exclusive discounts.
